Hi Jing—I noticed you've built an impressive portfolio around Cary, particularly the clustering on Hubner Pl and Strendal Dr, and I can see from recent permits that you're actively developing. I work with active developers in the market and wanted to reach out because I track off-market opportunities and zoning/development trends in the neighborhoods where you're focused. Would be great to connect and see if there's a fit.

Strategic Suggestions

- Research and map the exact properties around Jing's existing Hubner Pl cluster (7127, 7129)—identify 2–3 adjacent or nearby parcels that fit the
- Pull permit data for all 6 properties and timeline the recent work—this tells you what phase of the development cycle Jing is in. If permits are
- Segment the portfolio by financing: identify why Avoca Ct ($2M, leveraged) was financed differently than recent Hubner Pl purchases (cash). Ask about

Conversation Starters

- I noticed your recent purchases on Hubner Pl were both cash and closed the same day in May—was that a planned assembly,
- Your portfolio has 59 permits across 6 properties—that's a serious development pipeline. What's the typical timeline
- Looking at your rent per property, Avoca Ct is generating significantly higher income than the others. Was that a

Outreach Playbook

- Off-Market Deal Flow on Caddis Boulevard & Adjacent Streets — Early notice of any motivated sellers on Caddis Boulevard, adjacent streets, or the immediate North Raleigh corridor.

- Developer Ecosystem Connections — Introductions to local general contractors, expedited permitting contacts, property managers experienced with new
- Neighborhood Market Intelligence for Exit & Expansion — Detailed market data on North Raleigh neighborhoods within their price range and hold profile—where similar builds are

Hi [Investor Name]—I noticed you've assembled three properties on Caddis Boulevard, all completed and rented in early 2025. That's a sharp execution on a micro-neighborhood. I work with active developers in North Raleigh and wanted to connect because I track off-market opportunities and motivated sellers in your target corridors—thought it might be useful to be in conversation as you look at your next move.

Strategic Suggestions

- Map the investor's visible street clustering: Create a visual showing all three Caddis properties, their lot configurations, and adjacent parcels.
- Track Raleigh municipal permit data weekly for the North Raleigh corridor. Flag any new development, demolition, or rehab permits in the $280K-$320K
- Build a 'Caddis Boulevard+ Comparable Exits' brief showing how similar new construction rentals in adjacent North Raleigh neighborhoods performed on

Conversation Starters

- I saw you closed all three Caddis properties on the same day in January. Are you looking at Caddis as a completed
- With the rental income you're generating there (~$2,050/unit), what's your thesis on the 12-month hold—are you banking
- Do you have a preferred contractor or development partner for your next project, or would introductions to North

Hi Jonathan and Kelly—I've been following the development activity in your Stonegate and Harps Mill portfolio. I noticed you've pulled 37 permits across those three properties and recently closed on the $710K acquisition on Stonegate in July. That's a deliberate neighborhood buildout, and I work with developers executing exactly that kind of focused strategy. I wanted to reach out because I have early access to off-market opportunities in those corridors that might fit your timeline.

Strategic Suggestions

- Research recent permit filings in Raleigh for their target corridors (Stonegate Dr, Harps Mill Woods Run, Neuse Farm Dr area). Understand what types
- Map their portfolio for land assembly gaps. With 4 properties clustered geographically, identify adjacent parcels or properties that, if acquired,
- Connect them with a commercial real estate agent or development broker who specializes in land assembly in their Raleigh market. They may be moving
