Outreach Playbook

- Off-Market Opportunity Pipeline in Core Neighborhoods: Agent access to pocket listings, pre-MLS opportunities, and distressed properties in their proven neighborhoods before they hit the market. Agent can build relationships with wholesalers, probate attorneys, and contractors in these specific corridors.
- Property Management & Tenant Placement for Hold Period: Relationships with property managers, tenant screening services, and quick-turn rental placement strategies to stabilize properties between purchase and exit. Can also help identify the highest-rent-per-month properties in their target neighborhoods to guide acquisition decisions.
- Construction & Rehab Contractor Network Intelligence: Agent can refer vetted, reliable contractors for common rehab scopes in their target neighborhoods and share intel on permitting timelines, inspector preferences, and cost benchmarks for typical renovation budgets in the $200K-$750K range.
- Financing Partner Intelligence & Lender Relationship Optimization: Agent can share market conditions, rate trends, and lender appetite for their deal type (active rehab flips in mid-market range). Can also introduce them to local lenders or capital sources they haven't tapped yet in their core neighborhoods.

Hey [Name]—I've been tracking Clear Construction Group's activity in Raleigh and Cary, and I'm impressed by your acquisition velocity and the neighborhoods you keep returning to. I noticed you've picked up multiple properties on Ashland and in the Bickett Blvd corridor, and you're consistently pulling 80+ permits a year. I'd like to be a resource for deal flow and neighborhood intel in those areas where you've proven your thesis—curious if you're open to a conversation about off-market opportunities in your pipeline?

Strategic Suggestions

- Map their neighborhood clustering (Raleigh: Drew, Ashland, Ashford, Bickett, Hudson, Dogwood, Colleton; Cary: Fairbanks, S Harrison, Walnut) and position yourself as the go-to agent for those 2-3 specific streets. Track comps, rental rates, and permit trends in each micro-neighborhood.
- Since they've purchased 2 properties on Ashland St and multiple in other Raleigh neighborhoods, identify why those areas work for them. Is it tenant demand? Rehab cost efficiency? Appreciation potential? Use that insight to find similar off-market deals before they hit Zillow.
- Note that 618 Drew St ($430K, Feb 2025) and 307 Bickett Blvd ($695K, Aug 2025) both purchased with 100% cash in recent months—they have significant dry powder. Use this to educate them on emerging opportunities at their target price points before capital-constrained competitors find them.
- Their rental income suggests they're holding some properties longer than the 0.9-year average. Identify which properties are cash-flowing best ($3,919/mo at 431 S Harrison Ave, $3,962/mo at 110 Hudson St) and source similar neighborhood/property type opportunities.

- Provide quarterly neighborhood reports on their core streets: permit activity, new contractor licensing, market rent trends, and comparable sales. This builds trust and positions you as market intelligence, not just a transaction facilitator.

Conversation Starters

- I've noticed you've returned to specific neighborhoods multiple times—Ashland St, Bickett Blvd, the Hudson St corridor. What is it about those areas that keeps working for your flip thesis? Is it the tenant demand, construction cost efficiency, or appreciation trajectory?
- Your permit volume is substantial—86 across 11 properties. Are you managing the rehab scopes in-house, or do you have preferred contractors in Raleigh and Cary? I'd love to understand your typical timeline from acquisition to stabilization.
- I see you're using a mix of all-cash and financed deals. How are you prioritizing capital deployment right now—are certain neighborhoods or property types more favorable for leverage, or does it depend on available financing terms?
- Looking at your portfolio, it seems like some properties stabilize quickly into rentals (like the ones generating $3,900+/month), while others move through faster. What's your decision logic between holding for rental income vs. flipping for a quick exit?
